

You take my breath away...

Thoughts

Air pollution is a huge problem for many Europeans. Fine dust particles and other contamination of the air we breathe decreases life expectancy.

“Breathing is the greatest pleasure in life.”

- Giovanni Papini

The team

You are a group of lawyers preparing a bill declaring clean air a human right. What consequences will that have? Who is responsible for clean air?

Procedure

Make a presentation on the future situation with clean air as a human right. Take the human right for clean air for real. Imagine the consequences; is it a governmental responsibility to provide clean air? Who is to be held accountable? What if pollution comes blowing in over the borders? How much is an individual allowed to pollute? And how much pollution is tolerable for companies?

Think of what organisational structures you might need in order for this bill to work. Do we have to reorganise Europe to make safe areas and industrial ones?

In your presentation, support your claims by valid data.

Afterwards, reflect on your personal input and the groupwork.

Outcome/aim

Make a plea of seven minutes on your plan to organise the future of clean air.
